8. Reservation of Title

8.1 We reserve the proprietary rights for the purchased product until we will have received all payments from the business relation – also balance claims from the current account. We shall be entitled to take back the purchased product if there is a behavior contrary to the contract, particularly default in payment. The taking back of the purchased product, however, shall be no resignation from the agreement, unless we would have explicitly stated this in writing. The customer does not acquire property for the entirely or partially manufactured goods by means of the processing; the processing shall be free of charge exclusively for us as a manufacturer in the meaning of § 950 BGB (= Civil Code). Should, however, our reservation of title be cancelled by means of any circumstances, so the customer and we already now agree that the ownership of the goods shall be assigned to us with the processing and that we shall accept the assignment of property and that the customer shall remain the depository of the goods free of charge.

8.4 Should our reserved goods be processed with goods being still in third-party property or inseparably be mixed with them so we shall acquire co-ownership of the new goods or the mixed inventory. Also the claim against the bank which has opened or confirmed a letter of credit in favor of the customer (= reseller) within the scope of the resale shall belong to the claims from a resale. Herewith we accept the assignment. Should the reserved goods be processing products or mixed inventory in which besides the goods supplied by us only such objects are contained which either belonged to the customer or which had been supplied to it by any third party only with the so called simple reservation of title so the customer shall assign the entire claim from the resale of the goods to us. Otherwise, with the conjunction of a pre-assignment to us and to other suppliers so we shall be entitled to a fraction of the proceeds on disposal, to be precise according to the proportion of the invoice value of our goods to the other processed or mixed goods.

8.7 The customer shall also assign the claims for the safeguarding of our claims against it which arise through the connection of the purchased product with a plot against any third party.

Furthermore we can revoke the direct debit authorization of the customer if the customer falls into arrears with the performance of its obligations against us especially with the payments or if any other circumstances become known which let its creditworthiness seem doubtful. Should the direct debit authorization be cancelled or should it be revoked by us so the customer shall immediately inform the debtors of the assigned claims on our request and shall give us the information and documents required for the collection.

8.9 As far as our claims are covered entirely by means of the above explained assignments respectively reservations doubtlessly by more than 110% so the surplus of the accounts receivable respectively the reserved goods shall be released on request of the customer according to our selection.

8.10 The customer shall be obliged to point out to our property / right and to immediately inform us in writing in any case of access of any third party to our reserved goods or the accounts receivable assigned to us.
